EXPLANATION

"What do you think you're doing?" Is not a real question.
It's just a way to show that you're surprised or displeased with someone's action.

When people are angry, they usually say "What the heck do you think you're doing?"

The word heck, is the polite way of saying "hell".
Don't say hell, it's not polite.

"I can't study at home, because my family talks so loudly."
The word "family" is a collective noun.

Collective nouns are names of collections of people or things.

Examples

- Team = a collection of players.
- Staff = a collection of people who work in the same place.
- Flock = a collection of birds.
- Etc.

CONVERSATION...

EXPLANATION

Collective nouns can be thought of as single or plural nouns.

Sometimes we can use collective nouns as single.

- My family talks.

We added (s) because we treated the word "family" as a single noun.

And sometimes we will use it as plural.

- Saw a flock of sheep.

The verb that follows will not need an extra (s).

"I'll give it a shot" That's an idiom

Meaning: to give something a shot is to try to do it.

"Dude" Is American English slang for "guy" or "man" or in other countries like Australia or England "mate".

"They tend to close late"

Tend to do something means: to frequently do it.

You can think of it as saying "usually".

Alright, that's it. I'm getting a librarian.

Ohh, a librarian. Scary!

CONVERSATION...

EXPLANATION

"Can you please shut up?" The word "shut up" isn't usually polite. He was angry. That's why he used the word "shut up".

He could have said other things and would have been much nicer.

Example

- Could you please speak a bit quieter?
- I'm sorry, would you mind keeping it down?

"Maybe if you ask nicely" It means you admit that what you're doing is not ideal but you aren't happy with the method of bringing your attention to it.

It's like saying "Ok, I know my behavior isn't the best, but I don't appreciate the way you're talking to me".

CONVERSATION...

EXPLANATION

"I have no interest in splitting hairs" That's an idiom.

If we say that someone is splitting hairs, what we actually mean is they are trying to argue about very small and unimportant details.

Example

- A: The president is 64 years old.
  B: No, you're wrong. He is only 63 and half.

  A: No, I'm sure he's 64 years old.
  B: No, listen to me. He is 63 and half.

  A: No, 64.
  B: No, 63 and half.

As you can see, arguing about that is a waste of time. It's splitting hairs.

"I'm sorry that your parents didn't teach you how to be nice" This is a very annoying statement.

It's like he's saying. "Well, it seems you are fixating on me having to say sorry. Ok, I will give you the sorry that you're looking for but you're not gonna like it".

Z AMERICAN ENGLISH

CONVERSATION...

EXPLANATION

A: Hey, Steve. Do you know where I can look for used cars?
B: To buy?
A: What else?

"What else?" This way, you express that you're surprised by the question. It's like saying "Isn't it clear already? Why do you have to ask?".

We could use another word in this situation, the word is "duh". Duh means "of course" - "what else" - "same thing".

"There is a dealership that sells used cars on Victoria street"
The word dealership comes from the word deal.

When you go buy a car, you're making a deal.

Example
I will take this car for this amount of money. Do we have a deal?

CONVERSATION...

EXPLANATION

The person who sells you the car, we call him" a dealer".
A dealer is a person who sells goods.
A dealership is the company that has the permission to sell you these cars.

"I'm down. Can you go with me?"
I'm down is a slang term that we use to show agreement.
We can use both "up" or "down" to show agreement.

For example, I can say "I'm up for it"
"I'm up for it" means "count me in" - "include me" - "I'm OK with it".

We can also say "I'm down with that".
I'm down with that means "I like that" - "I'm OK with that" - "I agree to that".

"Shoot me a text" That's a slang term and a cool way of saying "Send me a text".

"You owe me" Here means "I am doing you a favor" so you owe me a favor.

CONVERSATION...

CONVERSATION

EXPLANATION

A: What's up man?
B: Nothing much.

When you say nothing much in response to someone asking how you're doing. It means "Nothing important".

B: How are you doing?
A: Better than I deserve.

When you are happy with how everything is going in your life, you can use that "Better than I deserve" or "Can't complain".

Can't complain means you're satisfied with how everything is going in your life.

"To what do I owe the pleasure?" This is a good way to ask why someone is calling.

To what do I owe the pleasure is used when you want to ask why someone is contacting you.

If we say "Why are you calling me?" That could be very rude. It's like you're saying "I don't want to hear from you. Stop calling me".

CONVERSATION

EXPLANATION

"I was wondering if you could hook me up at the place you work"
Hook me up is a phrasal verb. It has several meanings.

In American English when you say hook someone up with something. It means that you will give them something through your connection. Your connection of people, or contacts.

"You're the bomb!" When we say that something or someone is the bomb. That's slang for saying "you're cool" - "You're awesome" - "you're great".

"I'm learning to keep my chin up."
To keep your chin up is an idiom that means "that you're trying to remain happy, cheerful and to keep having hope especially in difficult times".

EXPLANATION

"Yo Mark, What up man?" Yo is slang and we use it for 3 main purposes.

- First usage of Yo is to greet someone. It's like saying "hello".
- Second usage of Yo is to attract someone's attention.
  You want someone to pay attention to you. Or perhaps someone is not looking at you and you want them to turn their heads to your direction.
  Yo in this usage, it is equal to saying "hey".
- Third usage of Yo is to express excitement. It's like saying "Wow".

"I was about to call you? What's the word?"
What's the word is slang and we use it to ask someone how they are doing. It's like saying "how are you", "howdy", "how is it going", "what's up", "what's happening", "how are things" and all of that.

CONVERSATION

EXPLANATION

A: All good. Got some good news for you by the way.

B: Brilliant. Spill it, Jay.

Brilliant is a word that we can use to express happiness or satisfaction. Use it the same way you use, awesome, great, amazing.

Spill it is slang for "talk" - "say it".

We can also use another word similar to this and say "spit it out".

Of course we don't want the person to eject saliva out of their mouths, but we want them to hurry up and talk.

Jay is a nickname for Jack.

"Thanks a lot, bud. Did he say he has an open position?"

The word bud is short for buddy.

Buddy means "close friend".

CONVERSATION...

EXPLANATION

"Thanks a lot, bud. Did he say he has an open position?"

An open position is a vacant job.

a vacant job means a job that nobody is filling at the moment, so it's available for someone to come and take it.

"No, he didn't mention any vacancy at the moment."

The word vacancy is the noun from vacant.

EXPLANATION

"Man, Am I excited?" That wasn't a real question.

He is not actually saying "Do you think I'm excited?" or "Do I look like I'm excited?"

No, he wasn't asking at all. So why did he say "am I excited?" instead of "I am excited"?

He could have said that, but it's more common to express excitement in the form of a question.

Example

- Wow, it's so beautiful. > Wow, is it beautiful?
- My god, he is so annoying. > My god, is he annoying?

"It's an internship for a tech company."

An internship is when you get a position in a company as a student or a trainee. You work there sometimes without getting paid because you want to learn and gain more experience.

CONVERSATION...

EXPLANATION

"Wow, that's impressive. I hope you get it. Fingers crossed."

We can say another word for "impressive" like (awesome, admirable, spectacular or excellent).

"Fingers crossed" This is a hand gesture that we commonly use to wish someone good luck, it's like saying "I wish you good luck".

"We're doing mock interviews."

The word "mock" can be used to mean "laugh at someone or something" or "to create something similar to the original object. To make a good copy of it (a replica)".

Example

- It's not okay to mock and disrespect others.

  Mock = laugh at or tease

- We always give students mock exams.

  Mock = replica - a similar copy

CONVERSATION...

EXPLANATION

"That's strange because you're the only one I know who doesn't use fillers in his speech."

The word fillers, as the name suggests is something we put in a place to fill it.

When you talk, sometimes we need to think of the next word or we need to choose words carefully. We will end up having a gap in our speech. To fill this gap we use what we call "fillers".

Fillers words like (you know - uh - mmm - like) we use them to avoid stopping when we talk.

Nowadays teenagers overuse fillers in their speech. It's disgusting. You will hear someone saying.

- I was like you know happy but he was like you know ummm not so much and then we you know told him like come on.

It's just hurtful to hear. So, it's okay to use fillers every now and then but don't over do it.

CONVERSATION...

EXPLANATION

"Let me just stop you there. I was just being sarcastic. Your sister is right, you overuse fillers."

His friend was just using sarcasm. He was being sarcastic.

Sarcasm is when you say the opposite of what you want to say in order to make fun of someone.

Example

- You look very tired in the morning and you keep yawning.
- I look at you and say; wow, I love your energy in the morning.

The question is: do I mean it? Do I love your energy?

No, it is the opposite of what I want to say.

You have no energy. So this is sarcasm and I was being sarcastic.

EXPLANATION

"I like working with people. I'm a great people person."

A people person is somebody who is very good at interacting with people. They enjoy being around people. Some of us are like this, it comes naturally to some of us to know what to say and how to say it. But for some, interaction with people needs a little extra effort. To be a good team player and blend in, we all need to learn how to make others comfortable talking to us. If you make people comfortable coming to you. We call you approachable.

If you're approachable, you're welcoming, you're friendly and easy to talk to. It's a very good skill.

"I'm very responsible and I always aspire to meet the expectations that my managers have of me."

The word aspire is a little similar to the word hope or desire.

I aspire to do something. = I have a desire to do it or I hope to achieve it.

EXPLANATION

"Haha you bet but, don't worry. I've seen worse."

You bat is slang and means "yes", "you're right", "Of course," and "totally".

Example

- Person A invites you to dinner. After dinner he asks you if you| enjoyed the meal. You can say "You bet". It means. "Yes, I did".

"Sorry. I just like to be always prepared and hey, doesn't this itself show my devotion?"

The word devotion here means "loyalty towards something".

If you love something so much and you're very loyal to it. We say "you're devoted".

"Not to toot my own horn." This is a phrase used especially in America and Canada.

It means, to talk about yourself and say very good things. It's like the word "brag".

CONVERSATION...

EXPLANATION

"Wow, ok. Off the top of my head, I think my main weakness is that I don't tolerate sloppy work."

"Off the top of my head" means. I will just say what comes to my mind without thinking first. I will not give any careful thoughts.

The word "tolerate" means, to allow.

The word "sloppy" means, careless or disorganized.

"... you are a perfectionist or any of that bullsh, please just save it."

Bullsh is a short way of saying "Bullshit".
